We work all year long to serve the underprivileged children of Clay County. Although we are often recognized for our work during the holiday season, we partner with local public service agencies to identify children and fulfill their needs for basic items such as food, clothing, school supplies, appliance repair, and much more.

The J. P. Hall, Sr. Children's Charity has made great strides in keeping pace with the needs of children in a fast-growing country with a shifting economy. With new services and programs being added, the charity is now recognized as a valuable resource in Clay County and regularly works with the Clay County District School System, Clay & Baker Kidsnet, Clay County Sheriff's Office, Green Cove Springs Police Department, and Clay County Behavioral Health Center.

Each year the charity hosts several events designed to help a variety of underprivileged families. All of these charitable efforts are supported by two annual events designed to generate funds for the continued work of the J. P. Hall, Sr. Children's Charities.

And while the charity's services and activities continue to grow, the goal remains the same - to be a stalwart benefactor for underprivileged children.
